

sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated to by law to serve the public interest. The FCC, after allowing large media conglomerates to purchase multiple radio, TV stations and newspapers serving the same market has a moral responsibility to ensure that these media Companies do not act in ways that are contrary to the democratic process.

Sinclairs actions show why the FCC needs to be ever vigilant, and why they must act now.
